

About

Over the past decades, migration has transformed towns and cities across Europe. Creating inclusive cities for migrants and refugees can be a challenge for local communities, especially in small and medium-sized cities with limited human resources and access to funding.

Running from 2020 to 2022, IncluCities aims to improve integration of third-country nationals in small and medium-sized cities through city-to-city cooperation. Eight cities and their national associations of local and regional governments are taking part. The initiative is led by the Council of European Municipalities and Regions (CEMR) and funded by the European Union's Asylum, Migration and Integration Fund (AMIF).

Objectives

- Facilitating the exchange of knowledge between 4 mentor and 4 mentee cities and associations to improve integration practices.
- Enhancing capacities to better deliver policies on integration.
- Strengthening the role of national associations as key players in reinforcing coordination between levels of government and fostering knowledge-exchange.

The method

The strength of IncluCities lies in providing concrete local solutions for cities while getting inspiration from local experiences from across the EU. By scaling-up what works well, we also aim to influence EU policies on integration that would better respond to local needs. We support city-to-city cooperation by establishing mentoring activities between cities to improve integration at the local level. Moreover we want to inspire others to use this method in the future.

IncluCities helps mentee cities develop integration action plans by defining benchmarks based on EU-wide and mentors' experience. By defining these benchmarks, as well as identifying the key factors necessary to achieve them, IncluCities facilitates the design and implementation of action plans.

Cities paired in groups of 2, will work together on a concrete topic related to integration after identifying needs and strengths with the help of Migration Work. A series of good practices from participating cities and other local governments around Europe and the CEMR network will provide additional inspiration for the Action Plans.

Expected outcomes

- Improved long-term integration of third-country nationals in medium-sized cities
- Improved transnational local cooperation between cities and associations of local and regional governments
- Increased capacities of cities and associations of local and regional governments
